

(From the Alta California, August 29.)

Announcement of a Wonderful Ascent.

About 2,000 persons collected on yesterday afternoon, at Oakland, to see Mr. Kelly make the promised ascension in his balloon. The balloon for the occasion was one of the largest size, about 18 feet in diameter, and made of yellow silk. The scene for the ascension was in the town, not far from the wharf. The arrangements for the manufacture of gas were not properly managed, and at 1 o'clock, the time for the ascension, the balloon was not more than half full.

At 3 o'clock it was two-thirds full, and the crowd becoming impatient, Kelly determined to try it. He had provided blankets, provisions, bags of sand, and so forth, but the balloon would not rise with him. Kelly being rather heavy, several lighter men then got in, but they were still too heavy. During this time the balloon was loosened and moved off about 200 yards, sweeping along near the ground. The crowd called for a boy, and a number of them who were near cried, "Let me go." The car had been taken off so as to make the balloon as light as possible, and a light hoop about an inch square and three feet in diameter, with a light board four inches wide lashed across the middle, offered the only position for a seat.

Upon one end of the board where it rested on the hoop, a boy named Joseph Gates, aged 16 years, took his seat. Kelly's partner, who was at a little distance, cried to them to hold on till he had given the proper directions; but he had barely time to tell the boy to pull the rope when he should wish to come down, when the persons near let go, and the balloon arose rapidly. It first took a southern course, until it had gone about two miles, when it struck another current of air and took a northern course, and when last seen was among the clouds, probably eight or ten miles northwestwardly of Oakland, and 800 or 1,000 feet high.

The boy was a fruit vender of this city, and was selling fruit in Oakland yesterday morning. His parents live in California street. He went up without any provisions or any clothing, except an ordinary suit. He weighed about ninety pounds, and appeared to be about twelve years of age, though he was really sixteen.

He caught hold of the valve rope, when Kelly's partner told him that it would be necessary to pull it to let the balloon down. Some persons said they saw the boy pull the rope and saw it break, but this is not probable, as the rope appeared strong enough to bear two hundred pounds. No sooner had the balloon risen than the crowd began to express their regrets. Kelly tried to pacify them by saying the boy had been up before, but all his companions deny it. He was rising very rapidly when last seen, and moving still more rapidly to the northeast. No one can tell what his fate may be. He had not even fixed himself properly on his seat, but was sitting on the edge of the hoop and leaning back upon a rope. If he does not succeed in opening the valve to let himself down, he will be in danger of becoming so numb with cold as to fall out, or he might be frozen to death by the extreme cold; or, if he succeeds in getting down safely, no one knows how far it may be from any human habitation.

Several of those present assert positively that the boy let the rope go, and that it blew up over the netting. If this be true, there is but little hope of his escape alive.

SAFETY RETURN OF THE BOY AERONAUT.
Joseph Gates, the boy who made an ascension in a balloon from Oakland, on Sunday afternoon, and for whose safe return there appeared little ground to hope, arrived last evening in the Sacramento boat, safe, except a sprain in his ankle. He landed in Suisun Valley, fifteen miles from Benicia, and five miles from any house. He retained his presence of mind throughout, during the hour and a half that he was in the air, in which time he traveled about fifty miles.

He was excited when he started, but when he had risen a short distance he became perfectly collected, and leaned back in an easy position against the cords. Here he sat, and for a long time heard the cries of the crowd below, and saw the whole bay and the country from San Francisco to Sacramento.

The only unpleasant sensation he felt was cold in his feet. He took off one shoe and tied a handkerchief about his foot, and then took off the other shoe, but dropped his handkerchief, and had to put on that shoe as it was before.

He wanted to come down soon after the balloon started, but the rope broke; but he was not disconcerted nor frightened. He knew very well where the balloon was going, and he wanted to land near Benicia, but could not climb the ropes to cut the balloon, as he wished. This he knew was his only hope, and he persevered until he succeeded in climbing up the body of the balloon and cutting a hole with his penknife. He was careful not to make the hole too large, and when he was satisfied that the hole was of the right size, he slipped down the rope. The balloon descended very gradually, and as it reached the ground in an open plain he sprang off. The balloon lightened of its weight rose again rapidly.

He then walked five miles before he reached a house, and the next day he walked to Benicia. This aeronautical tour is, undoubtedly, one of the most remarkable on record. When we consider the youth and inexperience of the navigator, the unexpectedness of the trip, the scanty accommodations, his success in climbing up the cords and cutting the balloon in a perfectly successful manner, and his fortunate escape, the voyage has scarcely an equal for romantic interest from the time of Montgolfier to the present day. To climb the cords was a labor of extreme difficulty, for they were only about a quarter of an inch in thickness and the distance from the hoop to a point practicable for cutting was about twelve feet. But few persons could perform the feat of climbing near the earth and much less the height to which he ascended. He saw not a little danger, but his voyage will become famous, and his name will be spoken from Europe to Australia. He can sell oranges and peanuts with a perfect rush for a few days. One of the first questions, after his arrival here, was what his partner had done with the money for the oranges and peanuts in the basket he left behind. He was not entirely absorbed by the romance of the voyage, nor forgetful by the fright.

A bird standing five feet high, five feet eight inches from tip to tip of the wings, has been shot at Oquawke, Wisconsin. Its color is blue, with a green tuff on the head.

The great race between a night-mare and clothes-horse came off the other day. The man who entered the mare wasn't wide awake, so the horse took the prize.

Fashion for October.—Punch, who is an acknowledged arbiter elegantiorum, contains the following item of fashionable intelligence for the month of October:—"Bonnets will be worn on the small of the back."

On Friday morning commenced the examination of Wm. Patton alias Whelan, charged with the murder and robbery, on the 14th of July last, of an unknown man, near Tyler Mountain, in this county. At 12 o'clock, M., on Saturday after the examination of a large number of witnesses for the Commonwealth, the case was submitted to the court, without the examination of any witnesses for the prisoner, or argument of counsel. He was sent on for further trial at the Circuit Court, which will commence its full term here on the 17th of October. Counsel for the prisoner, B. H. Smith & Son and James Hendrick, Esq.—Kan. Republican.

PREPARED BY

DR. C. M. JACKSON,

AT THE GERMAN MEDICINE STORE

320 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

THEIR power over the above diseases is not equalled—equalled—by any other preparation in the United States, as the cures attest, in many cases after skillful physicians had failed.

These Bitters are worthy the attention of all. Possessing great power in the rectification of diseases of the Liver and Gallbladder, exercising the most searching powers in weakness and affections of the digestive organs, they are, without a fail, certain and pleasant.

Head and be convinced.

From the "Boston Bee."

The editor said, Dec. 2nd

Dr. Hoofland's Celebrated German Bitters for the cure of Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, is deservedly one of the most popular medicines of the day. Thousands have been cured by its use, and a friend at my elbow says he has himself received an effectual and permanent cure of Liver Complaint from the use of this remedy.

We are convinced that, in the use of these Bitters, the patient constantly gains strength and vigor—a fact worthy of great consideration. They are pleasant in taste and smell, and can be used by persons with the most delicate stomachs with safety, and without any inconvenience. We are speaking from experience, and to the afflicted we advise their use.

"SCOTT'S WEEKLY," one of the best Literary papers published, said, Aug. 25—

"Dr. Hoofland's GERMAN BITTERS, manufactured by Dr. Jackson, are now recommended by some of the most prominent members of the medical faculty as an efficient remedy in cases of female weakness. As such in the case, we would advise all mothers to obtain a bottle, and thus save themselves much sickness. Persons of debilitated constitutions will find these Bitters advantageous to their health, as we know from experience the salutary effect they have upon weak systems."

More Evidence.

The Hon. G. D. HUNTLEY, Mayor of the City of Camden, N. J., says:

"Hoofland's German Bitters.—We have seen many flattering notices of this medicine, and the source from which they came induced us to make inquiry respecting its merits. From inquiry we were persuaded to use it, and say that it has cured us of our chronic disease of the liver and digestive organs, and the powerful influence it exerts upon nervous prostrations is really surprising. It calms and strengthens the nerves, bringing them into state of repose, making sleep refreshing. If this medicine was more generally used, we are satisfied there would be less sickness, as from the stomach, liver, and nervous system the great majority of real and imaginary diseases emanate. Have them in a healthy condition, and you can defend them to your dominions generally. This extraordinary medicine we would advise our friends who are at all indisposed, to give a trial—it will recommend itself. It should, in fact, be in every family. No other medicine can produce such evidences of merit."

Evidence upon evidence has been received (like the foregoing) from all sections of the Union, the last three years, and the strongest testimony in favor of this medicine is its use in the practice of the regular Physicians of Philadelphia, than all other nostrums combined, a fact that can easily be established, and fully proving that a scientific preparation will do more for the human system than any other medicine.

That this medicine will cure Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, no one can doubt after using it as directed. It acts specifically upon the stomach and liver; it is preferable to calomel in all bilious diseases, as the effect is immediate. They can be administered to female or infant with safety and reliable benefit at any time.

Look well to the marks of the genuine.

They have the written signature of C. M. JACKSON upon the wrapper, and his name blown in the bottle, without which they are spurious.
